Two lawyers had a little unpleasantness between them a few days ago in the St. Louis City Court. One called the other a puppy, whereupon the party of the second part assailed the party of the first part with great violence. A St. Louis reporter says: "The Court wiped the perspiration from her face when the scrimmage was over, fined the limbs of the law $8 each, and sentenced them to five hours imprisonment. The sentence was withdrawn, however, at the request of the beligerents, and the Judge at once became the recipient of nuserous praises."

They have artificial ice works in full operation near New-Orieans, and thousands flock to them daily to see the process, which bids fair to obviate entirely the necessity for importing Korthern ice. The artificial ice is sold at three-quarters of a cent a pound. The manufacture is said to be very attractive, from the pumping of the water from the turbid river, near at hand, to the slipping out of the polished, glistening slabs of alabaster looking lee from the tim holds, in which they are congealed. The first works, upon a small scale in this country, were established in Augusta, Ga., during the war.

On Wednesday night, a boarding-house in Rashville was entered by a burglar, who made his way successfully through several sleeping-rooms, stealing whatever valuables he could find as he went along. On reaching the second story he was detected by a Mr. Bass, a boarder, who at once attempted to arrest him but in vain. The burglar fied down the stairs, through the yard and over the fence, hotly pursued by Mr. Bass and others. On reaching the street, he was met by a negro who in attempting to stop him, was stabled through the beart and died almost immediately. The burglar who is known as John Hart, bears a bas character in Nashville, and is said to have murdered a man last year on the Chattanooga Railfond. He was arrested and taken to jail, from which an excited crowd were for some hours anxious to drag him to summary execution.

Witness then ran to the stern of the boat, and locked at the persons struggling in the water, and returning to the captain informed him that two of the number in the water were policemen. The captain replied, "Let them drown, all the police in New-York ought to drown, for they are thieves." Witness is of the opinion that the captain was under the influence of liquer at the time. Roundsman Charles N. Combes of the Twentieth Precinct corroborated is good part the testimony of Sergeant McCullough, and added that when hear the shore he told the captain that a policemsn had been drowned; the captain said, "I am glad of it; they ought to be drowned; they are nothing but a parcel of thieves." The case will be continued to-day at the Weoster'st. Police Sietion. Coroner Flynn has issued a warrant for the arrest of the captain of the Seth Low, whose name is unknown to any of the witnesses.

The decided upward impulse given to the stock of the North-Western Railway by the recent change in the administration of that great work, marks the confidence felt in the power of the new President and his Board of Directors to give additional value to the property subject to their centrol. It has long been a matter of wonder to thinking men in the West why, having the resources of such a vast country to draw upon for its support, and such large gross earnings, the road should be in such great disfavor with capitalists. Without assigning any reason for the patent fact that the stock has for years been selling at a ruinous discount, those to whom the condition and resources of the property are familiar have abundant reason for their belief that, under the keen management of Mr. Keep, the road will hereafter justify the confidence of its projectors, and steadily and surely rise to its proper place in the estimation of the public. We have no doubt of the great intransic value of the property; we have ever believed that, being managed in Hilmois for legitimate purposes, rather than in Wall-st. for speculative and other personal ends, the shares of the road can, within a twelvementh, he made to approach par—the common as well as the preferred shares. Asked to say which promised the most for the future, the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, or the North-Western, we should hesitate how to decide. Yet the stock of the first is selling at 122, and that of the last at 68. This vast difference is due more to intelligence and fidelity in administration in the former, and to
